

At-A-Glance

What is TPBA2 and TPBI2?	The Transdisciplinary Play-Based Assessment, Second Edition (TPBA2) and the Transdisciplinary Play-Based Intervention, Second Edition (TPBI2) is a play-based, parent-friendly, and child-directed assessment and intervention system for young children.
What age range does it cover?	Birth to six
What does it assess?	Four key developmental domains: sensorimotor, emotional and social, communication and language, and cognition
How long does assessment take?	60–90 minutes for a complete TPBA2 play session
Where is it conducted?	Assessment is conducted in the home or a play environment such as a playroom, playground, classroom, or child care setting.
Who conducts it?	Early childhood professionals, with parents closely involved as an integral part of the team. The TPBA2 team and the TPBI2 team can be the same or different, depending on the program's structure for providing services.
How does the system link assessment with intervention?	Findings from the TPBA2 assessment are directly incorporated into the TPBI2 intervention process. The intervention team closely reviews findings from TPBA2 and uses these observations as a guide when choosing TPBI2 interventions that address specific areas of concern.
Training	Training on TPBA2 and TPBI2 is available through Brookes On Location. See www.brookespublishing.com/tpba for more details.
