

Before diving into analyses of learning environments and educators' teaching skills, it is critically important that consultants and coaches have built relationships with the educators with whom they work so they can share sensitive information respectfully and effectively.

